2. Accepting your scholarship

Your provisional scholarship offer communication explains how to accept or reject your scholarship by the due date. You cannot defer a scholarship to a later semester or year (except for the RMIT Award for Higher Education or VET scholarships). See section 4.5 on Deferment for further information.

3. Communication/correspondence

We will send any correspondence regarding your scholarship to your RMIT student email account. Please check this email account at least weekly and ensure that there is space to receive emails. Students whose program have been discontinued and are no longer an RMIT student, will receive communication to their personal email account that were previously stored/entered in Enrolment Online.

Please note that if you do not respond to requests for information by the Coursework Scholarships Office by requested dates your scholarship may be terminated or placed on hold.

4. Conditions and criteria of scholarships

4.1. Eligibility criteria

To receive a scholarship, you must meet the eligibility requirements, outlined on the scholarship's website www.rmit.edu.au/scholarships.

Note: your continuing eligibility will be assessed on an ongoing basis each semester. If you do not meet the eligibility criteria at the time of assessment your scholarship may be terminated or placed on hold.

4.2. Enrolment

To receive a scholarship, you must be enrolled in a program of study at RMIT in Australia (see 4.3 Enrolment load).

If you need to change your enrolment, you must follow the correct procedures. Visit <https://www.rmit.edu.au/students/student-essentials> for more information. This will ensure that your scholarship is not affected.

You must always maintain an active ('enrolled') enrolment status unless you are on an approved leave of absence.

4.2.1 Changes to your enrolment

You must tell us of any changes to your enrolment via email to scholarships@rmit.edu.au. These changes include transferring to part-time or full-time study, taking leave of absence, deferring, or cancelling your study.

Note: if you make a change to your enrolment, it may affect your eligibility to receive a scholarship, the payment value, and when you may receive your eligible scholarship payments.

4.2.2 Re-enrolling

If you are re-enrolling in your program, please re-enrol by the last date in December for the following year as advised at <https://www.rmit.edu.au/students/student-essentials/important-dates>

Note: if you have a 'discontinued' enrolment status or are not enrolled in any course/s on the University's student administration system your scholarship will be terminated or placed on leave.

4.3. Enrolment load

In your provisional scholarship offer communication you can find out about enrolment requirements for your scholarship payments. Most scholarship require recipients to be full-time enrolled. Check section 5 to see if your specific scholarship does allow part-time enrolment, if your scholarship is not listed in section 5, your enrolment must be full-time.

Full-time enrolment

Full-time enrolment for higher education students

If you are a higher education student, to maintain full-time enrolment you must be enrolled in at least 36 credit points per semester/half year (half years are either: 01-Jan to 30 June or 01 July to 31 December) or 75% of the standard enrolment load in your program at RMIT.

A standard 100% full-time enrolment load is 48 credit points per semester / half year (half years are either: 01-Jan to 30 June or 01 July to 31 December). If you are enrolled in less than 36 credit points per semester/half year, you are enrolled part-time. If you have a flexi enrolment that spans across the year (greater than 6 months in duration), the credit points for that course will be divided equally into the two half year spans (e.g. 12 credit point course of greater than 6 months duration will have 6 credit points allocated to the first half of the year and 6 credit points allocated to the second half of the year).

Full-time enrolment for vocational education students

If you are vocational education student, to maintain full-time enrolment, you must be enrolled in at least 75% of your scheduled hours for a term in your program at RMIT.

As vocational education programs vary in the number of scheduled or nominal hours, please review the Enrolment Program Structure for your particular program.

Refer to RMIT Enrolment Policy (<https://www.rmit.edu.au/about/governance-and-management/policies>) for more details on full-time load.

Part-time enrolment

Part-time scholarships are typically paid at a half rate of the advertised scholarship value.

Scholarships paid to students enrolled part-time are considered taxable income (by the Australian Taxation Office (ATO)) and you will need to include your scholarship value with your tax return to the ATO. RMIT will not withhold tax from your scholarship.

Part-time enrolment for higher education students

If you are a higher education student, part-time enrolment is 24 credit points or less or less than 75% of the standard enrolment load in your program at RMIT.

A standard 100% full-time enrolment load is 48 credit points per semester/half year (half years are either: 01-Jan to 30 June or 01 July to 31 December). If you are enrolled in less than 36 credit points a semester/half year, you are enrolled part-time.

If you have a flexi enrolment that spans across the year (greater than 6 months in duration), the credit points for that course will be divided equally into the two half year spans (e.g. 12 credit point course of greater than 6 months duration will have 6 credit points allocated to the first half of the year and 6 credit points allocated to the second half of the year).

Part-time enrolment for vocational education students

If you are vocational education student, to maintain full-time enrolment, you must be enrolled in less than 75% of your scheduled hours for a term in your program at RMIT.

As vocational education programs vary in the number of scheduled or nominal hours, please review the Enrolment Program Structure for your particular program.

Refer to RMIT Enrolment Policy (<https://www.rmit.edu.au/about/governance-and-management/policies>) for more details on full-time load.

Part-time enrolment in exceptional circumstances

If you are receiving a scholarship that requires you to be enrolled full-time, you may be able to reduce your enrolment to part-time in some exceptional circumstances.

Exceptional circumstances may include:

- a long-term medical condition, that prevents you from studying full-time on a medical basis.
- carer responsibility

If you reduce your enrolment to part-time and want to keep your scholarship, you will need to submit a written request to the Coursework Scholarships Office, with current supporting documentation (original or certified copies) that support your request. You may be asked to provide this request and supporting documentation by a due date. If you fail to do so, your scholarship may be terminated or placed on hold.

Note: continuation of your scholarship during part-time enrolment is at the discretion of the Coursework Scholarships Office. If your request to continue your scholarship while studying part-time is not approved, your scholarship may be terminated or placed on hold.

Approved part-time students (have been given permission to study part-time from the Coursework Scholarships Office)

- Your scholarship is now considered taxable income (by the Australian Taxation Office (ATO)) and you will need to include your scholarship value with your tax return to the ATO.
- Scholarship payments for approved students will be paid at a part-time rate of 50% (e.g. if you are approved part-time for the Orcadia Foundation Scholarship for one year, the scholarship value will be reduced from $5000 to $2500 ($1250 per semester)).
- Approved part-time students may be requested to submit new supporting documentation each semester/year depending on the circumstances to ensure the continued appropriateness of studying at a part-time enrolment load. If you fail to provide documentation when requested, your scholarship may be terminated or placed on hold.

These are not considered exceptional circumstances for having a part-time enrolment load:

- not passing course/s
- overloading your enrolment in a previous semester/s
- having approved credit exemption/s and no further classes to enrol into for that semester/program
- studying at another institute for credit exemptions
- enrolments in summer or spring enrolments do not count towards semester 1 or 2 enrolments

Reduced enrolment load and not approved for part-time study. If your scholarship permits being placed on hold for a semester, then payment may resume the next semester when your full-time enrolment has recommenced, depending on your scholarship. That semester of unapproved part-time load will count towards the duration of your scholarship, and it will also be considered as being on hold if allowed. Scholarships that are allowed to be placed on hold can be held for a maximum of two semesters. If you are not eligible for payment after your scholarship being on hold for two semesters, your scholarship will be terminated (see section 4.6 Leave of absence). Some scholarships do not allow any part-time enrolment load, and in these cases the scholarship will be terminated.

4.4. Duration of scholarship

The duration of your scholarship will be advised in your offer communication. Not all scholarship durations are the same. A scholarship's duration cannot be extended. Your scholarship will end with the end date of your scholarship.

See section 7 on academic performance and termination, and section 5 on individual scholarship requirements for further information.

Scholarship duration for standard program duration

If your scholarship duration is for the standard duration of your program, the scholarship will be paid for the standard full-time duration* of your program or the minimum enrolled credit points required to graduate, whichever is reached first.

Your scholarship will only be paid for the minimum credit points/minimum number of (full-time) semesters to complete your degree (as listed in the RMIT Handbook at www.rmit.edu.au/browse;ID=tw13xfw01iri1), even if you:

- reduce your study load, which increases the time it takes to complete your degree
- started your program prior to the commencement of your scholarship

Duration always relates to your program of study at time of offer and is not extended due to change of program (see section 4.7).

If you have approved credit transfers for your program of study, this may result in reduced scholarship payment duration (also refer to 4.3 Enrolment load).

Example 1: a higher education student enrolled in a program where the standard full-time duration is three years to graduate and has failed four courses (48 points equal to one semester (half year) of study). The scholarship cannot be extended to pay for any enrolment past three years.

Example 2: a higher education student has received credit transfers equal to one year of a three-year program that they are studying full-time. The scholarship cannot be extended past two years of payment.

If you have reached the maximum amount payable for a scholarship, you will not be eligible to receive any other scholarship from RMIT whilst studying the same level of program.

* If you have any approved semesters of part-time enrolment load, your scholarship duration will take this into account and be appropriately extended, see table below for examples:

Full time program duration	Semesters of full-time load	Semesters of approved part-time load	Scholarship duration
4 years (8 semesters)	6	4	5 years
3 years (6 semesters)	5	2	3.5 years
2 years (4 semesters)	0	8	4 years
2 years (4 semesters)	3	2	2.5 years
1 year (2 semesters)	1	2	1.5 years

Scholarships for less than program duration

If your scholarship duration is set for a certain number of semesters/years (as noted in your offer communication), the scholarship will only be paid for that specific duration of time. (If you have had any approved part-time study, your scholarship duration will not be extended.)

Note: if you started your program prior to the commencement of your scholarship, your scholarship will only be paid for the remainder of the standard duration of your program, or until you have attempted the minimum enrolled credit points required to graduate (including credit exemptions), whichever is reached first.

Example 1: an associate degree student has been enrolled for one and a half years of full-time study and has failed one semester worth of study prior to receiving a one year RMIT Study Support Scholarship. After receiving one semester of payment for the RMIT Study Support Scholarship, the scholarship will cease as the student will have attempted the minimum enrolled credit points required to graduate.

4.5. Deferment

No RMIT scholarships offered by the Coursework Scholarships Office can be deferred. If you do not enrol and study in the first semester that a scholarship is offered, you will not be eligible to keep a scholarship and the scholarship will be terminated. You are welcome to apply for the scholarship again when it is next available if you are still eligible as per the eligibility criteria on the scholarship website.

If you receive an RMIT Award for Higher Education or the RMIT Award for VET, you need to be enrolled in your program of choice at RMIT within three years of your graduation.

4.6. Leave of absence

Not all scholarships allow recipients to take a leave of absence and keep the scholarship (the scholarship being placed on hold while you take a leave of absence from your program). View section 5 for specific scholarship conditions (e.g. one year scholarships are not allowed to be placed on hold).

For scholarships where a leave of absence is not permitted, the scholarship will be terminated.

For scholarships which allow a leave of absence:

- no scholarship can be placed on hold in the first semester that you receive your scholarship, your scholarship will be terminated. Any monies already paid will be required to be repaid to the Coursework Scholarships Office
- if after your first semester of receiving your scholarship, you are then taking a taking a leave of absence from your program, you may also be able to put your scholarship on hold for a maximum of two semesters. Your scholarship will be placed on hold and you will not receive payments. Payments will recommence when you resume your studies and is subject to ongoing eligibility (as per details outlined in your original provisional scholarship offer communication, and these terms and conditions). Not all scholarships can be placed on hold.

4.7. Transfer

You can transfer some scholarships within the same program level (e.g. a Bachelor of Arts to a Bachelor of Engineering, a diploma to another diploma). If original scholarship eligibility requires enrolment in a specific program, you cannot retain that scholarship if transferring to a different program.

Note: If you do want to change program, you should discuss this with the Coursework Scholarships Office to confirm that you still will be eligible to receive your scholarship. Not all scholarships can be transferred.

If you can transfer your scholarship to a new program, the length of your scholarship will not extend. Your scholarship duration is based on your original program and provisional scholarship offer communication.

If you currently receive an undergraduate scholarship and enrol in an honours year program, you will not be able to extend your undergraduate scholarship to cover your honours year program. You must apply for a new scholarship.

For more information on transfers specific to RMIT Study Support Scholarships, refer to section 5.

Note: no RMIT scholarship offered by the Coursework Scholarships Office can be transferred to another university or person.

4.8. Discontinuation of study

If you withdraw from your program, or your program is discontinued, your scholarship will be terminated. If you re-apply for the same program at a later stage, you will also need to re-apply for scholarships. Please advise the Coursework Scholarships Office if you are cancelling or have cancelled your enrolment.

If you cancel your program after the semester has started, and payment for that semester has started, any monies already paid for that semester will be required to be repaid to the Coursework Scholarships Office. For more information about payments, see section 6.

Note: if you wish to discontinue your program, please visit the RMIT website for further information on how to action this: <https://www.rmit.edu.au/students/student-essentials/enrolment>

4.9. Reporting and survey requirements

Most scholarships require the recipient to write an annual report / survey. Reporting normally occurs during August and those required to be complete a report will be emailed the details to your RMIT student email account. Typical responses include the impact of the scholarship on your education, how you spent the scholarship funds and your academic / future work objectives. This information, including your name and program will be included in annual reports to scholarship donors / committees, advertising of scholarships including on the website. Some scholarships also require the disclosure of student grades/GPA at the end of each semester/half year and/or year to the scholarship donor/committees.

Periodically, scholarship recipients may also be requested to complete an online survey regarding your scholarship. Please complete the survey if the Coursework Scholarships Office requests.

4.10. Media conditions

If you are a scholarship recipient, you irrevocably:

a) Consent to the University, its employees or agents:

- photographing/videoing you and using any image of you in relation to the scholarship
- using any written material that you have produced on your experiences at the University in relation to the scholarship (including report submissions)
- to be involved, if requested, in any scholarship related publicity
