Vocational Education

Your VCE is a very important milestone in your education.

Why not study in a mature, and supportive environment with all the perks of tertiary study?

RMIT's VCE program gives you the chance to study in a committed cohort of students and get dedicated attention from experienced teachers, who will prepare you for the next step in your life – whether that's an undergraduate degree, vocational education or employment.

Who is this program for?

Whether you're a young person or someone a little older wanting to finish your high school education, RMIT's VCE provides you with the opportunity to do so in a university environment with like minded individuals in the heart of Melbourne's CBD.

What are my career outcomes?

Completing your VCE opens your pathway to employment or further studies. As a VCE student at RMIT you will have access to a pathways coordinator, who may provide help with:

- study and learning support
- career guidance and pathway planning
- information on courses, traineeships, apprenticeships and training options
- ongoing assistance applying for courses
- support with skills for finding employment, including résumés and letters of application
- referral to health, housing, counselling or financial support services.

How will I learn?

Your learning will include lectures, seminars, studios, workshops, presentations and group discussions

Ongoing assessment throughout the semester are designed to check your comprehension of course content and contribute to your ATAR. These assessments may include:

- examinations
- essays
- reports
- oral classes
- presentations
- group projects
- research projects
- laboratory projects
- practical assignments.

VCE

If you're considering doing your VCE at RMIT, I say go for it! I have succeeded more than I thought I would purely to the difference in the atmosphere between university and high school. I think studying VCE in an adult environment helps you to become an independent learner.
